The Department of Medicine has a long-standing commitment to excellence in post-graduate medical education. Our highly qualified teaching staff, state-of-the-art facilities, and friendly environment have helped produce physicians of the finest caliber. In addition to acquiring basic clinical competencies, residents are also exposed to distinct individual career objectives. The New York Medical College sponsors the Internal Medicine residency training program at St. Joseph's Regional Medical Center.

Night Float

Our night float system includes full resident coverage for admitting and cross coverage responsibilities and allows residence on call to go home at 9 pm.

Quick Facts

- The program is fully accredited by the ACGME
- The program is approved for 51 positions (17 in each of the three PGY levels)
- We have a 100% pass rate for 3 of the last 6 years. Our 3-year rolling average is 89% and we consistently score above the national average.
- The program offers fellowship training in the fields of Cardiology, Gastroenterology, Hematology-Oncology and Pulmonary Medicine

- We strictly follow ACGME rules about work hours: depending on the rotation, residence work between 40-72 hours weekly, and receive four to eight days off each month.
- We have an extraordinary diversity of pathology, due in large part to the mix of multi-ethnic populations and socioeconomic groups. This is one of the major strengths of the program
- The hospital is situated in close proximity to New York City and Philadelphia
- Applicants with recent graduation from medical school and USMLE scores > 80 on first attempt for Steps 1 and 2 are preferred.
